

Terence Blanchard: Jazz in Film

“For 17 years, Grammy Award-winning trumpeter/ bandleader Terence Blanchard has been scoring films: big, lushly orchestral scores that take so-called urban material and transform it into something universal.”

-The Washington Post

For a concert exploring jazz music in film, there is no better curator than two-time Grammy winner Terence Blanchard – one of the most important musicians, composers and bandleaders of his generation. Trumpeter Blanchard seamlessly swings between the worlds of jazz and motion picture scoring. “Jazz in Film” highlights Blanchard and his quintet, backed by an orchestra, featuring noir-nuanced renditions of various film selections from 1951 onward, including some of Blanchard’s own.
